Surprise Move Believed To Have Shortened the War

Disastrous Ohio Flood Reaches Critical Stage

But Crests Are Headed Downstream and Worst May Be Over

PORTSMOUTH, O., March 8 (P)—The Ohio valley appeared to be winning its fight against the third most disastrous flood in its history tonight, but the issue was undecided at some points. The cost was high.

Although less serious than floods of 1887 and 1913, the rain-fed Ohio river and its tributaries laid siege to hundreds of war arsenals in the industrial valley, took at least 100 lives and forced possibly 150,000 persons from their homes.

The crests, however, were headed downstream to the broad Mississippi and there, flood control provisions were expected to keep the waters in bounds.

Trouble at Portsmouth
Portsmouth was the scene of the fiercest fight against the Ohio flood and earthwork dikes were being topped by the city's sixty-two-foot floodwall as waters of the Ohio rose above the permanent barrier. The water stood 4.3 feet. Army engineers superintending the dike-building said "we have a fifty-fifty chance of holding it." It reaches even sixty-six feet.

Empty sandbags were flown to beleaguered city by army troop-carrying transports. They were shipped to soldiers and volunteers—building men, women and children—meeting the hasty breakthroughs.

The river was ebbing at Pittsburgh, where it is formed by the confluence of the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers. Other cities along Ohio's eastern border, such as East Liverpool and Steubenville, reported waters receding, but days must elapse before thousands who fled to the highlands can return and begin the job of drying out their homes.

Some of them this is an almost-normal task.

Other Points in Danger
Other Ohio points, however, were still battling to keep slowly-rising flood waters from breaching their defenses. Marietta looked for another half foot of water, sending the flood surface to 48.5 feet. Nearly 50 families left their homes there.

Shawneetown, Ill., traditional victim of high waters, had fifty-one feet of water, highest since 1937, and forewarned looked for a crest of perhaps five feet by the week's end.

British Agencies May Have Pull with Censor

PARIS, March 8 (P)—There were reports here tonight that correspondents of both the British Broadcasting Company and Reuters had named Remagen as the location of the United States First Army's crossing of the Rhine, but Supreme Allied headquarters declined to confirm them.

There was no explanation immediately as to how or why the two British agencies were able to go beyond censorship restrictions imposed on other correspondents.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Simultaneous collapse of crucial Nazi inner defense fronts on the West Rhine and middle Oder rivers hurling Allied and Russian armies surging immediately into the heart of crumbling Germany seems in prospect.

With startling suddenness both later hazards have been initially hurled by American First army elements in the west and Marshal Guderian's powerful White Russian striking force in the east. Short of wholly improbable Nazi mass counterattacks, the end of organized resistance in Germany within

Ickes in New Role:

Curmudgeon Wants It Known That He Has Become a Blushing Violet

By TOM REEDY

WASHINGTON, March 8 (P)—The curmudgeon would like it known that he is a blushing violet. "I hate rows," said Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes who gets in more of them than anybody. He doesn't get in them—he wades into them.

This peaceable facet of the sardonic, sarcastic, biting Ickes came out today at one of his infrequent but usually hilarious press conferences.

He didn't want to comment on whether the United Mine Workers Union would get their pay demands—his also solid fuels administrator. So he dusted off an angelic look and observed:

"I don't care to be the bone of controversy."

It was suggested that is a new role for the secretary.

"I hate rows," he said with a hurt look. But the grin crept out, and he added: "Unless I set the stage for them."

"That shows how important it is to suppress news sometimes," Ickes cracked. "There'd have been the usual run. You can go ahead and have an ex-post facto scare now if you like."

"Only we and St. Peter knew how tight the squeeze was." He was asked about his proposed new book and whether he thought it right for a government official to get paid for something like that instead of giving the information gratis to the public through the press.

Ickes said his book isn't news. It's just opinion.

"I don't have opinions very often," he said which is like saying Congressmen don't like to make speeches.

Tension Disappears
The conference reached historic decisions on its outstanding problems in an aura of friendliness which provided a startling contrast to the tension a few months ago. Nevertheless, prime questions were left over for the San Francisco meeting where, some delegates said, the real test of decisions made here will take place.

Months Can Be Foreseen. The evidence that the vaunted Nazi war machine is fast coming apart at its seams is too strong to doubt.

Utter confusion and staff disintegration within German ranks alone could explain the First army breakthrough to set up Rhine east-bank bridgehead somewhere south of Cologne. Neither the exact scene of the American crossing nor the means by which it was accomplished so swiftly were immediately disclosed.

The speed with which it was done, however, strongly suggested that Rhine bridge between Cologne and Bonn had been seized intact.

Third Marines Make Important Gain on Iwo

Reach Cliff Overlooking Beaches; Fifth Also Advances

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Guam, Friday, March 8 (P)—Front line dispatches disclosed today that the Third Marine division has reached the cliff top overlooking the north-east beaches of Iwo and the Fifth Marine division has shot an enveloping arm 1,000 yards up the northwest shore.

The disclosure followed by a navy communique announcing only small gains Thursday on the third day of an all-out push so bitterly contested that the Marines had to call on tanks to operate in unfavorable terrain as support.

Marines Reach Cliffs
The front line dispatches amplified these gains, placing Maj. Gen. Graves B. Erskine's Third division at the edge of the cliffs only 300 yards from the beach. The cliffs are honeycombed with dugouts in which machineguns and possibly heavier weapons bar the precipitous path down to the surf.

The place where the Third has completed the drive across the plateau is 1,500 yards southeastward down the coast from Kitano point, northernmost part of Iwo.

It also was disclosed that Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey's hard fighting Fifth Marine division thrust up the northwest coast 1,000 yards Wednesday and Thursday.

Fifth Near Top of Iwo
(The exact spot reached by Rockey's men was not reported, but a few days ago the Fifth was in a straight line with Third division Marines who captured a 362-foot hill. An advance of 1,000 yards on the coast opposite that promontory would put the Fifth less than 2,000 yards from the extreme north tip of Iwo.)

Indicative of the tough fight being encountered by the Fourth Marine division of Maj. Gen. Clinton B. Bates on the East side, its position still is anchored only a short distance north of the original landing beaches, won Feb. 19.

Inland, however, the Fourth has driven some salients up to 300 yards or more.

1946 Primary Election To Be Held in June

By FRED STABLEY

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 8 (P)—The 1946 primary election, at which gubernatorial and senatorial candidates will be nominated, will be held Monday, June 24, instead of the usual September date.

This was decided today at a meeting of Republican and Democratic leaders and the war ballot commission in Governor O'Connor's office.

The shift was made to facilitate handling of the absentee soldier vote by allowing a longer lapse of time between the primary and the General Election in November. Several months are required to draw up ballots, send them to servicemen all over the world and allow for their return in time to be counted.

Home Rule Bills Take a Beating In State Senate

ANNAPOLIS, Md., March 8 (P)—Home rule legislation took a severe beating today when the Senate emasculated the county commissioners bill by exempting thirteen counties, and nearly killed its companion piece, a measure calling for a constitutional amendment.

The first measure would extend the lawmaking powers of the county commissioners without repealing existing local laws. Senator Davis (R-Caroline) offered a last-minute amendment exempting his own and twelve other counties from its provisions.

The Davis amendment was passed by voice vote.

Cronin Opposes Action
Senator Cronin (D-Harford) chairman of a Judicial Proceedings sub-committee which worked on the bill, rose to tell the Senate he was "shocked and disappointed" by the action taken to exclude the thirteen counties.

State President Lindsay (D-Baltimore county) relinquished the chair to plead for the second measure, which would propose to the voters of Maryland a constitutional amendment curtailing the powers of

Russian Tanks 25 Miles from Greater Berlin

Other Red Forces Invade Danzig Territory for First Time

By ROMNEY WHEELER

LONDON, Friday, March 8 (P)—The Germans said last night that Russian tanks had plumed within twenty-five miles of Greater Berlin on the second day of an all-out frontal assault, while Moscow announced that other Soviet forces invading Danzig territory for the first time had rolled within twelve miles of the former free city of Danzig.

Surging ten miles west of the Oder river "the Rhine of the east," and last natural defense barrier before the Nazi capital, the Russians were reported by Berlin to have reached the junction town of Senow, outflanking the Oder fortress at Kuestrin and Frankfurt.

This development came as the Americans in the west crossed the larger obstacle of the Rhine south of captured Cologne.

Moscow Silent
Russia's high communique again ignored the vital Berlin sector except for the announcement that Red army troops to the north had overwhelmed German positions only seven miles from the Pomeranian capital of Stettin, main port for Berlin.

Moscow dispatches said the heavy fighting along the Oder might be the prelude to a final offensive against the Reich capital, but suggested the main blows might be forthcoming later on both flanks of the Nazi heart city.

Striking eight miles inside southwestern Danzig territory in a 14-mile advance yesterday, Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's Second White Russian army penetrated to within twelve miles of Danzig city and to within seventeen miles of Gdynia, another important Nazi naval base on the Baltic, with the seizure of Strangewalde.

The Germans in this northern coastal area were squeezed into a 3,820-square-mile area with all land escape routes cut.

Cross Nogat River
Berlin announced that Russian troops in a new offensive also had crossed the Nogat river boundary from East Prussia, reaching Neuteich, nineteen miles southeast of Danzig, in a seven-mile advance inside Danzig territory north of fallen Marienburg.

The First and Second White Russian armies together captured 360 towns and villages during the day, including the Pomeranian stronghold of Butow, and the "Polish corridor" bastions of Koscielzyna and Skarszewo to the east of the Soviet communique said. Berlin said the Pomeranian junction town of Schwane also had fallen.

Marshal K. K. Rokossovsky's Second army captured 2,000 of the 5,000 German prisoners taken during the day and overran 300 localities on a 100-mile front between Schwane in the west and Vistula river in the east. A total of perhaps 200,000 Germans were caught in the trap around Danzig, original estimates said.

New Curfew Ruling
WASHINGTON, March 8 (P)—Regional War Labor Boards were authorized today to "allow such wage and salary adjustments" as they deem fair for workers in establishments hit by the midnight entertainment curfew.

1,100 Agencies Could Be Given To Wallace, Senator Byrd Asserts

WASHINGTON, March 8 (P)—Senator Byrd (D-Va.) told the Senate today that by a stroke of the pen President Roosevelt could transfer more than 1,100 agencies of government to Henry A. Wallace's Commerce department.

The Virginian called the Senate's attention to a recent article in the Baltimore Sun declaring that the budget director is laying the groundwork for transfer of four independent agencies to the Commerce department. The article listed them as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Federal Power Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Byrd said that in passing the George Bill stripping control of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other lending agencies from the secretary of commerce, Congress had not closed the door on the president's power to transfer other agencies under his war powers.

"There are 1,141 agencies of government, all of them except RFC subject to transfer to Mr. Wallace," he declared.

In the same speech, Byrd charged that the federal government is "the biggest hoarder of labor," with 3,372,710 civilian employees on its payroll. He declared little effort had been made to trim this number.

Two Houses at Odds
The theories of the Senate and House bill are almost squarely opposed.

The House voted to empower local draft boards to order men from 18 to 45 to take war jobs, or stay on their present jobs if necessary to the war effort. Men who refused to do so would be subject to draft dodging penalties—up to five years imprisonment or $10,000 fine.

FORMER BASEBALL STAR, Lt. Comdr. George Earnshaw is now gunnery officer on a United States aircraft carrier and has been making some neat base hits in the South Pacific. Recently he won the commendation of Adm. Nimitz for knocking out three Jap planes near Truk, and here he is shown making sure that the Nip fliers aren't trying to put over a fast one.

New Manpower Penalties Hit Only Employers

WASHINGTON, March 8 (P)—The Senate sent a completely remodeled manpower control bill back to the House today, with all direct penalties aimed at balking employers rather than employees.

Jammed in the Senate two full weeks, the substitute bill drawn by the Senate Military committee was blasted loose late today by a 63 to 16 roll call vote. Thirty-nine Democrats, twenty-three Republicans and a Progressive voted for the measure, seven Democrats and nine Republicans against.

House May Balk
The House is expected to refuse to take the Senate substitute, sending the legislation to conference with instructions to hold out for the work-or-jail bill the representative approved Feb. 1.

The outcome there is doubtful. Senate Majority Leader Barkley has said repeatedly that the conference committee will write the final version of the bill.

Shortly before the final vote, the Senate reversed a decision taken Tuesday and wrote back into the bill a penalty of a year in jail or $10,000 fine for employers convicted of violating employment ceilings which the War Manpower Commission chairman would be authorized to establish for any and every place of business in the nation.

Vote Is 40 to 36
The vote is 40 to 36. Tuesday a similar clause was knocked out, 44 to 35. A significant and contributory factor in the reversal was a heavy switch of Republican votes. Twenty-three republicans voted Tuesday to remove the penalty; only nine were recorded today against putting them back in.

The Senate also adopted an amendment by Senator Morse (R-Ore), a former member of the War Labor Board, which would give the director of war mobilization (James F. Byrnes) authority to set up tribunals for appeal of challenged regulations. The bill had provided that the WMC chairman (Paul V. McNutt) could set up the appeal boards.

Morse argued that it would be unfair to let "the very man whose regulations may be challenged by a citizen have power to set up a tribunal to determine if the regulation was unjust."

Brilliant Coup Catches Germans Unprepared and Crossing Is Unopposed

Only Light Resistance Is Encountered as Americans Score Greatest Military Triumph Since Normandy Landings; Americans May Have Crossed Rhine on Captured Bridge; Enemy Disorganized

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

PARIS, March 8 (P)—Thousands of United States First Army troops, surging across the Rhine south of Cologne, drove east toward Germany's heart tonight against surprisingly light resistance after cracking the historic western barrier in a brilliant coup heralding a speedier end to the war.

The swift, sensational crossing was the biggest military triumph since the Normandy landings, and was a battle feat without parallel since Napoleon's conquering legions crossed the Rhine early in the last century.

GERMANS DISORGANIZED
It caught the Germans so disorganized that they met the assault waves with only scattered artillery and mortar fire, and they were quickly driven from strategic positions. The Allied high command kept them confused by withholding the momentous news for twenty-four hours.

The Luxembourg radio broadcast without official confirmation that the Americans crossed at Remagen, site of the great Ludendorff double-track railway bridge, twenty-eight miles southeast of Cologne and twelve miles southeast of Bonn.

MAY HAVE SEIZED BRIDGE
(Brussels radio carried the same report, prompting speculation in London that the Americans may have seized the bridge intact, putting them in position to hurry tanks across. The German communique said this morning that the Americans had reached Remagen.)

The crossings, fated to end the war months sooner than calculated, if it can be exploited, came as four Allied armies closed up to the Rhine nearly everywhere on a 150-mile front and the Third army on the south end began blasting with artillery at Coblenz, most important river crossing left to the enemy.

The Germans rallied for three counterattacks after the first American infantrymen hurdled the river at 3:50 p. m. yesterday, but these were hurled back.

Germans Powerless
The enemy was caught without prepared positions, and he was forced tonight to blaze away with artillery at the deep and firm bridgehead, trying to stem the Allied tide of men and materials rushing across the river.

Fighterbomber squadrons snarled through the murky sky, attacking a half dozen communications centers surrounding the bridgehead in an attempt to seal off reinforcements.

Tight censorship prevented pinpointing the location of the crossing and supreme headquarters late tonight still permitted only the barest details to be disclosed in the hope of throwing the Germans off the scent except those immediately brought to battle.

West Virginia House Favors Sale Of Liquor by Drink in Real Clubs

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 8 (P)—In one of the most vociferously-fought battles of the 1945 session, the West Virginia House of Delegates voted today to allow sale of liquor by the drink on premises of fraternal or veterans organizations of national standing.

The measure was the first of its kind to win approval of a legislative body since the state ratified its repeal amendment in 1934 with a stipulation that there be a state monopoly on liquor sales and that there be no public consumption by the drink.

The bill now goes to the Senate. The drama of the liquor debate overshadowed another floor battle in which the administration was defeated on a constitutional amendment which would have placed more financial responsibility on counties and cities.

The Senate had voted to submit the amendment but the House refused after a two-hour wrangle. Dry forces for two days fought with all their power to defeat the liquor-by-the-drink measure which passed 43-35.

The measure stipulates that to allow sale by the drink the fraternal or veterans organization must have national standing and have been in operation at least ten years.

Yanks Firmly Entrenched on Rhine East Bank

By HOWARD COWAN
ACROSS THE RHINE, March 8.—(AP)—Troops of the American First Army of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges swept across the Rhine river late yesterday and were firmly entrenched on the east bank tonight after severe fighting.

Three counterattacks were hurled at the bridgehead last night and one of them at 2:30 a. m. drove the Americans out of a command post and 500 yards up the river before they reformed and threw the enemy back.

Knock Out Nazi Gun
"They had a twenty mm gun they were using on us," said Lt. Lyman Smith, Jr., of Naples, N. Y., "but we have got that knocked out now."

The crossing itself was one of the most brilliant coups of the war and it caught the enemy entirely by surprise.

The infantry which got across first was commanded by Maj. Murray Devers of Hagerville, Ark. When I reached a command post on the east bank today Devers was spread out with the next objectives marked in crayon.

"It's the first sleep he has had in four days and nights," an officer said.

Details Not Known
Men were so busy fighting it was difficult to get details, but when the full story is told the names of Lt. Emmett J. Burrows—I don't know where he's from—Lt. John Mitchell of Pittsburgh, Pa., and an engineer named Lt. Mott will be at the top of the list.

"I haven't been confirmed yet," said Sgt. Major Stephen S. Price, New York City, during a brief chat in a command post on the east bank of the Rhine, "but we are pretty sure Burrows was the first man to set foot on this side of the Rhine."

The first troops began swarming onto the German-held side of the river at 3:50 p. m. Wednesday afternoon. (Accounts from the west bank said 4:30 was the crossing time.) Since then the flow of men and material has proceeded uninterrupted despite intermittent shelling which had grown heavier late today.

The crossing site was nearly out of range of anti-aircraft fire today.

Civilians Surprised
Germans in a village near the fast-moving operation were watching in wide-eyed awe as the American military might poured across the Rhine throughout the day.

Their consternation was exceeded only by the natives in towns across the river who had made no move to evacuate even though Cologne had fallen and the First and Ninth armies were drawing up along the Rhine on a broad front.

Surrender to Chaplain
One of the first men to greet me on the opposite shore was a chaplain from Henryetta, Okla., William Gible. Everyone else was so busy fighting this morning that he went with a German medic into a town on the east bank of the river and accepted the surrender of the entire populace and some 400-500 wounded Germans in a hospital.

The fighting men of the army which forced the D-day bridgehead in Normandy were wild with joy at the success of the Rhine crossing. Pvt. John Motesinger, Pittsburgh, Kan., was playing a French harp. "Want one?" he asked. "I got millions of 'em." His pockets were bulging.

Prisoners were coming in so fast there was no one to take care of them. Many were wandering about disarmed, but loose, and they remained wary of the 88 fire which was dropping spasmodically.

at San Francisco which may cause far more strain in that meeting than appeared here. It stems from the act of Chapultepec, guaranteeing American frontiers with the armed might of the American nations.

Up To Security Council
It remains for the San Francisco conference to decide how far this hemisphere can go in imposing peace without the express direction of the World Security Council. Main point of conflict is the fear that a virtually autonomous system is created in the Americas, Russia and Britain may seek the right for independent action in their part of the world.

Indications here were that the United States may ask special conditions to allow the Western Hemisphere to handle its family problems, since it has never threatened world peace.

Another open question is how far the Latin American nations, with very definite ideas about the Dumbarton Oaks plan, will get in their efforts to change the proposals for a world peace agency.

chairman to set employment ceilings and to forbid hiring of new workers.

While there is no direct penalty on employees, it has been pointed out that men and women forced out of work by such a ceiling might not be able to get other jobs.

Under each bill, persons taking war work assignments at government request away from their home locality would be compensated for their travel and would have reemployment rights to their jobs when their war plant service was ended.

Senator Russell (D-Ga.) said he didn't think very highly of the Senate bill, characterizing it as "no more effective than a resolution passed by the Ladies Sewing Circle of Squeedunk." The Georgian pleaded for rejection of the bill and passage of a work-or-jail measure approved by the House Feb. 1.

33rd Division Gains 12 Miles In West Luzon

By C. YATES McDANIEL

MANILA, Friday, March 9.—(AP)—American forces of the Thirty-third division drove twelve miles north along the west coast of Luzon to seize Aringay, due west of the Philippine summer capital of Baguio, while Yanks on Luzon's south coast advanced thirteen miles east of Balayan bay to capture Lema.

East of Baguio, the Twenty-fifth division was probing northward from Digdig and Carrangalan toward the Balete pass, gateway to the extensive Cagayan valley of Northern Luzon. The bulk of the remaining enemy garrison is believed to be in this area.

Capture of Lema gave the Yanks a firm foothold on the southern shores of Luzon, just thirty miles across the vital Verde island passage from American-held Mindoro island.

The Eleventh Airborne division and the One Hundred and Fifty-eighth regiment of the Eighth army reached Balayan bay Tuesday. They moved eastward along the fringe of the bay on a good highway.

East of Manila, in the bitterly-contested Marikina watershed area, the First cavalry and Sixth infantry divisions maintained active patrolling of the front and continued steady pressure on the flanks of the Shimbun line, stretching along the mountains from Antipolo to Wawa.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced in his communique today that bombers on successive days hit Japanese defenses along the line with more than 1,000 tons of bombs. This was the heaviest supporting action of any ground campaign in the Southwest Pacific.

Heavy bombers sank or damaged eleven freighters in wide sweeps of the China sea and areas around the Philippines.

MacArthur announced that Australian forces in an amphibious operation had landed without opposition on Seposa island, at the southern entrance to Matchin bay, off the northwestern coast of Bougainville.

Occupancy, Building Permits Are Issued

Fulton Myers Post No. 153, American Legion, yesterday obtained a permit from the city engineer to occupy 66-72 North Mechanic street as a club room and offices.

The property, located in the business zoning district, formerly was occupied as a club room and store.

A building permit was issued to Roy R. Henley for completion of an addition to the Peter Pan cleaning establishment by extending the concrete block walls up seven feet and constructing a tin roof at 536 North Centre street. The cost is estimated at $200. Charles P. Roeder is the contractor.

One of the two cars stolen here yesterday was recovered last evening and authorities were searching for the second automobile. Both vehicles, according to First Sgt. John H. Doud, were taken while the keys were still in the car.

Sgt. Doud said the car of H. Ople Aman, 609 Piedmont avenue, stolen from Pershing street at noon yesterday, was recovered by Trooper First Class A. M. Spioch at Greene and Chase streets early last evening.

The second car, owned by Millard McKee, Cressaptown, was taken from Baltimore avenue, yesterday morning. The Dodge car bears Maryland license tags No. 382,863. Police said.

Brilliant Coup

ing to outflank the entire Ruhr basin—the greatest resource of war material left to the enemy—and was a military achievement unsurpassed since the Allies stormed ashore in Normandy.

AP Correspondent Wes Gallagher writing from Cologne said the crossings had changed the western front situation overnight and opened the possibility of shortening the war months earlier than calculated by the Allied high command only a short time ago.

To seal off the bridgehead, von Rundstedt must rob other forces along the river, weakening them before the threat of six other Allied armies, could draw from the Russian or Italian fronts, both now ablaze.

Eisenhower now was in position to strike for the heart of the Reich across the rolling hill country south of the Ruhr valley.

The fact that supreme headquarters in announced the crossings referred to a bridgehead indicated good progress had been made east, since in military parlance a crossing becomes a bridgehead only when it moves out of direct, shore zone fire.

Cross Quarter Mile Stretch
Hodges chose to cross where the Rhine is about a quarter of a mile wide and its banks, steep and almost sheer at Coblenz, begin to flatten out as the stream meanders toward the Dutch frontier.

While the location was ideal, it was disclosed during the day that the First army had spearheaded the Rhine at three points between Cologne and Bonn.

The sensational development overshadowed combined First and Third army blows farther south, where German accounts were about fifteen miles from closing a steel trap on possibly 60,000 German troops and inching off 2,500 mountainous square miles of the Western Reich.

In this push, the First army had smashed halfway across through Bonn, Rhineland traffic nerve center with a population of 101,000, and was the same distance through Godesberg, three miles south, where the late British Prime Minister Chamberlain met Adolf Hitler for a second time in 1938 in a futile attempt to arrange "peace in our time."

Ninth Army Advances
The German communique said the Ninth armored division had forged across the Ahr river, possibly fourteen miles from where the Third army's Fourth armored division was shelling the Rhine transit center of Coblenz from positions at Wessenthurm, seven miles to the northwest.

For the Germans, the crossing of the Rhine would come as a shattering blow to morale. The Nazis were silent for more than twenty-four hours after the first crossings, and the powerful Allied-controlled Luxembourg radio made certain the news reached even the weakest German home radios by trumpet-ing.

"This is the greatest blow against the German army. The last phase of the war has begun."

The crossing of the Rhine, an Allied goal almost as soon as the armies of Eisenhower pushed ashore on the beaches of Normandy last June 6, was accomplished nine months and a day after the historic invasion of Western France.

The dramatic achievement capped an offensive launched Feb. 23 when the United States First and Ninth Armies smashed across the Roer, knocking the Germans off balance so badly that the high command ever since has blacked out most of the movements of the First and Third armies to keep the enemy confused.

The news swept through division after division, cheering battle-grimed veterans who felt that the end of the bloodshed in Europe was just that much nearer.

It was a great day for the United States First Army and marked one more "first" for that battle-seasoned organization. It was the first ashore in Normandy, the first to enter Germany, and the first to break through the Siegfried line.

Yank Parachute Trooper Hanged

LONDON, March 8.—(AP)—A United States parachute trooper was hanged today on a British prison gallows for slaying a taxi driver while one of England's most familiar opponents of capital punishment protested outside the walls.

In another prison, saved from a similar punishment by commutation of sentence to life imprisonment, was his co-defendant, Elizabeth Jones, 18, a frail but pretty former strip tease dancer.

Reprieve Brings Protest
The girl's reprieve, granted by Home Secretary Herbert Morrison, was stressed by the black-garbed Mrs. Violet Van Der Elst, who came to the prison walls shouting a protest.

"You let the girl off, but you let the man hang," she cried, striding to and from among the crowd of approximately 200 persons. "It's a damned shame."

Her demand to be admitted to the gallows chamber denied, Mrs. Van Der Elst boarded a garbage truck across the street, and, with the driver, charged toward the prison's wooden gate.

Police Interfere
Quick-witted police maneuvered another truck into the way, forcing Mrs. Van Der Elst to the curb. They dragged her and the driver from the machine and walked them away amid her shouted warnings: "Don't touch me."

In Boston Hulien's mother, Mrs. Signe Hulien, sobbed "I'd be better off dead with my boy." She said she would appeal to British authorities for his body.

Hulien's wife, Rita, and their 21-month-old daughter, June, were both ill at their Cambridge home. She cabled Hulien last night to "keep up your hope and courage, darling."

Aubrey Williams Favored By Dundon for REA Post

James A. Dundon, national TWUA representative, yesterday called upon Senator George L. Radcliffe to work and vote for the confirmation of Aubrey Williams as administrator of the Rural Electrification Administration.

The local labor leader said that Local 1874, Textile Workers' Union of America, and other CIO unions of Western Maryland were deeply concerned over the opposition to the former NYA administrator.

"If we are to achieve the stated goal of sixty million jobs in the postwar period, we will have to extend the use of electricity to hundreds of thousands of homes," Dundon declared. "A man like Aubrey Williams can be depended on to

Hurdling Rhine

However the First army crossing was accomplished, an all important factor is the nature of the east bank terrain at the indicated site. Between Bonn and Cologne the river meanders through a flat, flooded valley. There is good terrain and elbow room for a bridgehead more than a dozen miles long and six to eight miles wide east of the stream.

A firmly established American east bank footing of any scope at that point would not only virtually split the German watch on the Rhine in two but gravely threaten to outflank apparently hastily improvised German defensive systems on the east bank both to the north and the south.

The First army surprise crossing likely will lead not only to an early junction with the rampaging Third army on its right, trapping estimated thousands of Nazi troops between the two American armies, but probably to a third army passage of the river in the Coblenz area.

1946 Primary

was given servicemen and merchant mariners at the 1944 general election for the first time, also will be extended to the primaries.

Two other decisions reached at a session which Governor O'Connor described as "completely amicable," were to require filing of candidacies not less than sixty days before the primaries and to hold the major party conventions within thirty days after the primary.

Again, the reason behind these moves was to allow more time for preparing ballots, sending them out and receiving them from servicemen.

Under the present law, the deadline for filing candidacies is twenty days before the primaries.

Legislative Action Needed
The legislature will have to pass legislation to shift the primary date and to change filing dates, but this is expected to be done expeditiously and with no opposition. A revision of law probably will be needed, also, to extend the absentee voting rights to the primaries.

The session lasted less than an hour.

Concurring unanimously in the decisions were Governor O'Connor, members of the non-partisan War Ballots commission, State Central Committee Chairmen Galen L. Tait, Republican, and Truman B. Cash, Democrat, National Committee-women Mrs. M. Alice Canoles, Democrat, and Mrs. Lulu Powell, Republican.

Jacob France, Republican national committeeman, was represented by proxy, while Democratic National Committeeman William Preston Lane was absent because of illness.

"Fringe" Ruling Made by Vinson

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Fred M. Vinson fixed the limits for four common "fringe" wage adjustments tonight in his last act as economic stabilizer, and said they could be granted without OPA approval.

These adjustments involved vacations, shift differentials, merit increases and job re-classifications.

At first the Vinson order, handed down as he took the oath as federal loan administrator, to be succeeded by William H. Davis, former WLB chairman, was regarded as a concession to the board.

Later analysis by the board showed, however, that the ruling was not as liberal as it had expected it to be.

The possibility immediately arose that Davis might have to make his own revision or extension of the order to cover additional fringe adjustments.

In a statement which the board at first blocked from release through the Office of War Information but later withdrew objection to, Vinson said that all other fringe adjustments, which he classed as "minor," could not become effective if OPA says a price increase would be needed.

Of immediate concern was the status of the meat packing and textile industry cases, blocked in the dispute over this "fringe" policy.

Both still must be released by the board, which stayed the effectiveness of its decisions pending settlement of the policy, and some portions will go through Davis and some through OPA.

General Mudge Wounded by Jap

MANILA, Friday, March 9.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Verne D. Mudge, commander of the hard-hitting First cavalry division, was wounded severely Feb. 28 by a Japanese grenade, but the medical staff reports today his recovery was certain.

General Mudge's home is in Miami, Fla., his wife lives in San Diego.

The general was wounded on a battle line northeast of Manila while looking for a dugout when the army engineers had blasted Japanese, who had been left dead, tossed a grenade. Shrapnel wounded Mudge in the abdomen.

General Mudge has been with the cavalry since he left West Point in 1920. The First cavalry division veteran outfit, took Tacloban, Leyte and was the first to enter Manila.

DARE TO DREAM

Look out! It may get you yet as it has many another. And the worst of it is, you won't realize how it happened.

It starts with the war of course—that war that seems so far away to us on the home front. We read about it. Shudder over the accounts of bombed cities, massacred thousands, other thousands tortured and starved in concentration camps. And it sickens us. Yet even so we can't make it seem real. It isn't touching us. That's what we think. But we're wrong.

War is touching us here on the home front as surely as though we were slugging it out in Germany, undermining our whole lives. We don't realize it but each day our lives are shrinking—losing part of our old eagerness and elasticity. We go plugging along—doing our regular chores—taking the same street car in the morning—picking up the same chuck steak at night. And we know we're bored, saddened, dimmed down by a seeming hopelessness. But we don't know how much we've dimmed how deeply and dangerously we've changed.

What's made us change? We've stopped dreaming, stopped being curious and eager. We've let life narrow into a blind alley. We're going around dead from the neck up and we don't know it.

What makes life purposeful and exciting? What widens its horizons—fires our faith—makes us reach out for new worlds to conquer?

on dreams. Deep inside of us we start wanting something. Vaguely at first but with an urgency that grows warmer and wider as the dream takes shape, quickens into a plan, changes from a plan to a definite purpose and, finally, into actual achievement.

Remember the dreams of your pre-war days? Remember how you used to think about the new kitchen, Margot, years before it was realized in shining tile, gleaming chromium and deep-sealed casement windows? Remember how you schemed for that new car, Fred, hating your battered old jalopy, comparing models, until that glorious day when you swung that splendid new miracle to your curb?

Dreams. That's what they all were at first, all the achievements of our civilized world. Day dreams—sprouting secretly like spring grass, thrusting out, taking form, springing at last into full grown satisfaction. Touch anything in your room or office and you'll find it was based on someone's dream. Review anything you've ever done for good or evil and you'll find it too sprang from a dream. Without our dreams we'd still be swinging by our tails in some primeval jungle.

That's true. You knew it once in those pre-war days when you dreamed as naturally as you breathe.

BUT HOW LONG IS IT
SINCE YOU HAVE DREAMED
IN THAT OLD EAGER WAY?
HOW LONG SINCE YOU HAVE DREAMED AT ALL?

"A fellow doesn't dare dream nowadays," you say. "You don't know what will happen next." That is true. We can dream—we must dream—we need to dream more today than ever before. No matter how hard we work or how bravely we fight, we must dream or hell will happen next.

We are what we dare to dream! Then dream! Don't let life shrink into a blind alley. Don't go through the days like a mechanical robot. Lift yourself above the grim realities of the present. Reach out beyond the grief, the loneliness and fear that hem you in. You want a new world? Then create it! Start now! Start with a dream!

Beall Retains His Sense of Perspective

THE RECORD of J. Glenn Beall as the representative of the Western Maryland district in the national House of Representatives has been excellent. It is a record that should be mentioned as a possible gubernatorial candidate. But it is pleasing to note that Mr. Beall retains a due sense of perspective, that he purposes to concentrate upon his present duties and that he realizes the importance of those duties in serving the largest congressional district of the state with respect to area and the next largest with respect to population.

Thus, while duly appreciative of any mention of him for higher position, Mr. Beall has indicated that he also appreciates two underlying factors connected with the recent publicity given him. One is the partisan angle, wherein Democratic writers sense a possible advantage in interposing in Republican party affairs. The other, also with partisan angle, has to do with sly inferences, sometimes the bald statement, that any Republican nomination by a Democratic writer or group represents a factional division in Republican ranks with widespread dissatisfaction over the course of its leaders.

Beall, a faithful Republican, knows and appreciates the fact that Republicans of Maryland are now more united than in many years and that a Democratic dissent is at a minimum. Perhaps it would be too optimistic to dismiss existence of anything of the kind as it is to be assumed in the normal run of things. Wherefore, he will not fall for any Democratic baiting, however much it may redound to individual pride and gratification. In other words, Beall continues level-headed with his feet on the ground, and that is exactly what his multitude of friends expect of him in view of the sensible course he has pursued as an efficient and hard-working representative.

Easter Seal Sale Deserves Support

ABOUT TO EMERGE victoriously from a war for the rights of humanity, it is pleasant to be reminded of what some of those rights are, and one such reminder arrives with the envelope of gayly colored Easter seals, which help finance a program of child care and education for crippled children in the community.

At this time of the year it is good to remind ourselves that helping others to help themselves is our American way of doing things, and that the Easter seal is a convenient symbol of that belief. We can well imagine a picture of restoration of the physically handicapped to productive capacity is the kind of investment we cannot afford to overlook.

Generous public support of the sale of Easter seals, sponsored by the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, will promote this end; all should buy them and use them.

But most of all we welcome the reminder that some day those whom we are now helping may help us. This is what is known as enlightened self interest; the restoration of the physically handicapped to productive capacity is the kind of investment we cannot afford to overlook.

Generous public support of the sale of Easter seals, sponsored by the Allegany County League for Crippled Children, will promote this end; all should buy them and use them.

Bureaucratic Practice Reform is in Order

A WASHINGTON DISPATCH says there is a good chance that the McCarran-Summers bill will become a law. This is a measure designed to reform the practice of administrative agencies by more strictly defining their powers, providing greater publicity for their rules and regulations, limiting the penalties they may impose and providing for defendants from unfair "smearing" at the hands of defendants.

The measure has the support of the American Bar Association, leaders of which have examined its purposes and contents closely. Some of the certain agencies, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission and the Securities and Exchange Commission are reported as preparing to oppose it.

There seems no good reason why any administrative agency should oppose the main purposes of the measure, although some modifications may be found worthwhile on the basis of the experience of the opposing agencies named. This is because the main objective is to keep administrative law as it should be governed in this country well within the boundaries of our constitutional system and there have unfortunately been too many instances in which these boundaries have been exceeded.

There can be nothing unfair in providing some decent checks upon the new powers that have been so lavishly distributed among governmental agencies—powers the president himself has admitted might be dangerous in the wrong hands. Experience has shown that some of them have fallen into the wrong hands—fanatics, or "zealots" as the late Joseph Eastman called them. As for that angle, one good corrective is already at hand to be employed whenever the people can see fit to exercise it, which is through the ballot.

Not for Punishment But as an Example

LEST it be thought that this newspaper was too bloodthirsty in its recent observations that Hitler, Mussolini, Hirohito and the other war leaders should be done to death when they are finally overwhelmed in defeat at the hands of the Allies, it may be noted that others are voicing like opinions.

The Altoona, Pa., Tribune, for example, believes these criminals should be executed, being prompted to expression by a suggestion made

WHAT SOME FOLKS DON'T KNOW IS GOING TO HURT THEM

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

OPA Officials Win Round 1 in Throwing Solons Out of a Committee Hearing

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—OPA, never famous for its tact, recently hit a new low when officials threw three congressmen out of a meeting of the Strawberry Growers Industry Advisory Committee. Present at the meeting, besides the growers, were Representatives Jimmy Morrison, of the Louisiana strawberry district; Harold E. Hartman, Democrat, and John Jennings, Jr., Republican, both of Tennessee.

The three congressmen had been asked by the strawberry growers to attend their meeting with OPA. The strawberry people have been having OPA difficulties—The Florida and Louisiana growers feeling that the ceiling prices imposed last year are not high enough to cover crop loss through poor weather, while growers in other states now ready for planting don't know what their ceiling price will be.

Some are convinced that OPA price heads Geoffrey Baker, formerly of General Foods, and John Gismond, formerly of the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company, are out to protect the profits of the processors and handlers of strawberries, rather than the growers. They point to the high retail price for both canned and frozen berries, although the ceiling price they have been working under was thirty-two cents per quart for most of the season.

North Carolina farmers were so angry about the ceiling last year that they let about a third of their crop rot in the fields. Most growers are willing to let the thirty-two-cent price stand, but they have no assurance that it will and OPA has indicated that this price may be cut.

Last week's meeting had been underway for about fifteen minutes when Franklin Gindick, of the OPA Food Price Division, who was serving as chairman, suddenly announced, "We have got to stop this meeting a minute while we ask the congressmen to leave."

When the congressmen showed no disposition to leave, "Strawberry Champion" Gindick asked them to step into the hall, where he told them "The Law" prohibits their attendance at industry advisory committee meetings.

To this, Louisiana's Jimmy Morrison replied, "I'm a lawyer and a congressman, but I've never heard of that law. Will you show it to me?"

Gindick said he was referring to a ruling by the attorney general, but Morrison insisted upon seeing the ruling or hearing it from the attorney general or one of his staff. Finally Gindick gave up and called Mrs. Ethel Gilbert, head of the OPA Office of Industry Advisory Committees, after the congressmen refused to go to Mrs. Gilbert's office. Definitely Not Wanted.

"You gentlemen will have to leave," Mrs. Gilbert told them. "The attorney general does not want congressmen at industry advisory meetings."

Again Morrison insisted upon proof that the attorney general had made such a ruling; to which Mrs. Gilbert replied, "You are taking advantage of a lady, Mr. Morrison."

Morrison, however, stood his ground until Mrs. Gilbert explained, "This is a rule I made. I control policy for these meetings, and will let senators and congressmen attend."

"By what authority?" asked the congressman from Louisiana. "The OPA Appropriation bill is due to come before the House within a few weeks," Mrs. Gilbert replied. "The authority you congressmen gave me—believe me, I use it."

John Jennings, Tennessee Republican, finally gave up in disgust; but Morrison and Earhartman returned to the conference. They were followed by Mrs. Gilbert, who announced that so long as the congressmen insisted upon staying, there would be no official action at the meeting, even though the growers had travelled hundreds of miles at their own expense. Finally the two congressmen left.

When the strawberry growers met last year at OPA, Morrison and Senator Tom Stewart, of Tennessee, were on hand—and were permitted to stay throughout the meeting.

Enforcement Idea Is Whittled Down, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 8 — Gradually the concept of a league of nations to enforce peace has been whittled down to a weak substitute. Public opinion, which a few months ago was demanding that all the armed might of the Allied nations should be used to preserve peace after world war II is over, now has apparently swung around to the idea that it doesn't matter very much if the major nations do not agree to a league which requires each of them to submit their disputes and accept the verdict of an international organization before resorting to war.

It is being argued furthermore that, of course, if Russia or any of the other major powers commits an act of aggression, nothing can be done about it anyway and no league could stand up if a major power objected to a decision by such a league.

This willingness to accept something that is far from the original objectives which were proclaimed as war or peace aims in 1941 is really startling because it shows what a powerful impression government propaganda has made already. It reveals a tendency to conform to the attitude taken not only in

Britain but in the United States after the Munich conference of 1938 when argument upon argument was offered to the effect that a "practical" division of Czechoslovakia had been achieved and that, after all, the important thing was that peace wasn't disturbed.

Today the point is being repeatedly made that the important thing is unity. No matter what deviations there are from our peace objectives, the chorus seems to be that unity has been maintained. Unity is meaningless and temporary if it is based on an unsound foundation.

Welcome in Some Quarters

In some quarters, to be sure, the swing from a league to enforce peace to a league that will discipline only the smaller nations will be welcomed. Thus, for instance, the believers in moral force as the only way to preserve peace must be heartened by the tendency to narrow the field in which physical force can be ordered by international action.

The only fly in the ointment in that argument, however, is that moral force will have little chance to exert its influence where freedom of the press is non-existent. Much is heard about the way the new league is to investigate disputes and make public to all the world the facts of the controversy and the recommendations of the Security Council. But of what avail will such a decision be if it is not even printed and cannot reach public opinion in the country which is believed to be in the wrong?

Influenced by Distortion

The world has had an experience with the controlled press in totalitarian Germany from 1933 to 1939 and beyond. Whatever influence for peace was exerted through the concessions at Munich was lost because of the way the Nazis distorted the viewpoint of other nations. Moral force depends for its efficacy on a free press.

This is one reason why so long as there is any totalitarian state in the world with a big army or air force and so long as one man can overnight plunge such a country into war, moral force cannot be a preventive of war. So the new league to be set up at San Francisco will start with its biggest handicap if it does not insist on freedom of the press in every country in the world, especially in Russia and the Balkan states under her control. There should also be insistence on freedom of worship, for unless the psychological influence of the spiritual side of a people is permitted to exert itself one of the most powerful instruments for the prevention of war is rendered useless.

Original Major Aim

To say that the voting procedure just announced for the proposed Security Council is not important, because the major nations would be in a war anyway if they disagreed, is merely to accept with resignation that war is inevitable and that disputes between powerful nations cannot be prevented by the combined defense of all other nations.

A league to enforce peace, including the right to discipline any nation, large or small, which shall be guilty of wrongdoing, was one of the major aims for which so many American boys have made the supreme sacrifice. It is amazing how quickly these aims can be curtailed, if not abandoned, even in the midst of war.

The daughter of the United States commissioner of patents, Annie Elsworth, chose the words: "What hath God wrought!" for the first commercial telegraph message sent in 1844.

Real fact is that U. S. films going into France are selected by the Office of War Information, are the cream of the Hollywood production. Francis DeWolf, head of the State department's Telecommunications section—which includes motion pictures—was not impressed by the French complaint. He sent back word that complaints about the quality of U. S. films might be better received if the French were willing to grant visas to representatives of U. S. film industry so they might get in and study the reaction of the French to the pictures and carry on normal business relations.

Although Gen. Eisenhower has not stood in the way of movie people who wished to go into France for their companies, the French government has not been willing to issue the necessary visas. The State department, already under pressure from movie people here to issue a government newsreel and freeze out American reels, has been trying to get movie people into France so that they can re-establish themselves. But so far all the French will take from Hollywood is film.

Enforcement Idea Is Whittled Down, Lawrence Says

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, March 8 — Gradually the concept of a league of nations to enforce peace has been whittled down to a weak substitute. Public opinion, which a few months ago was demanding that all the armed might of the Allied nations should be used to preserve peace after world war II is over, now has apparently swung around to the idea that it doesn't matter very much if the major nations do not agree to a league which requires each of them to submit their disputes and accept the verdict of an international organization before resorting to war.

It is being argued furthermore that, of course, if Russia or any of the other major powers commits an act of aggression, nothing can be done about it anyway and no league could stand up if a major power objected to a decision by such a league.

This willingness to accept something that is far from the original objectives which were proclaimed as war or peace aims in 1941 is really startling because it shows what a powerful impression government propaganda has made already. It reveals a tendency to conform to the attitude taken not only in Britain but in the United States after the Munich conference of 1938 when argument upon argument was offered to the effect that a "practical" division of Czechoslovakia had been achieved and that, after all, the important thing was that peace wasn't disturbed.

Today the point is being repeatedly made that the important thing is unity. No matter what deviations there are from our peace objectives, the chorus seems to be that unity has been maintained. Unity is meaningless and temporary if it is based on an unsound foundation.

Babson Stresses Thinking Powers Of War Veterans

By ROGER W. BABSON

BABSON PARK, Fla., March 8 — I am astonished by figures just released. These show that over 3,600,000 draftees have been turned down because of poor physical condition and over 1,600,000 discharged while the average intelligence of the entire army equals only that of a 13-year-old boy.

Yet, politicians pretend that this situation can be remedied by loaning each returning soldier from $2,000 to $10,000, or by giving him $500 per year plus $50 per month to get some kind of a diploma! I am glad to have veterans receive these gifts; but they must not think the loan or the diploma will enable them to operate a business successfully or even to hold a good job.

It would be far better for the government to help these men develop self-mastery and constructive thinking—to use themselves as a laboratory instead of bothering with some college laboratory. The truth is that their brains have been in a concentration camp for the past few years. The veterans' future depends upon the use of their brains, in hard constructive thinking under expert guidance.

Your Boys' Brains

Without doubt the United States will enjoy a few years of "prosperity" following World War II. Certainly, this will last until the people spend the money which—since 1940—they have been accumulating. As to what will happen thereafter will depend upon the thinking powers of the returning soldiers. G. I. loans and free education will not keep people employed. In fact, why should any man expect any other man to employ him? Why should not all have initiative and originality enough to create their own jobs?

The answer to the above question is that very few people have been taught to do original and constructive thinking. This is a basic cause of unemployment and one which must be rectified. Here are materials of great importance to every parent: Has your boy a definite goal in life? Has he self-control and self-mastery? Has he imagination, energy and stick-to-it-iveness? Has he been "born again" spiritually? Is he returning from the war more or less thoughtful—with better habits? The answer to these questions by honest mothers will determine whether the United States' debts will be paid or repudiated as well as our postwar employment situation.

Great Discoveries Ahead

At the adult conferences to be held at the Babson Institute in April and May, these questions will then be given definite help by experts. The first step is to realize that body, mind and soul are one, and that a truly spiritual rebirth is the most effective foundation for a useful, healthy and happy life. But those attending these courses will learn of other methods of stimulating men which have untold and unlimited possibilities.

The future of your boys after the war will not depend upon money or college diplomas but upon self-mastery and brains. Neither of these needed assets is secured by reading books or by listening to the radio. They will come only through self-development, hard thinking and bitter experience unless some entirely new methods are discovered. Personally, I believe such discoveries will take place. Hence, I am optimistic as to the future. There should be hundreds of thousands of Edisons, Einsteins and Fords!

Encourage Employers

Heretofore, brain surgeons and psychiatrists have worked only with the insane or those who are broken down nervously. In the new era following World War II, I believe they will work with normal boys and stimulate their thinking and personal powers. You see immediately that this has tremendous possibilities and could completely revolutionize educational methods as well as religious work. We will have more and better employers. Let every reader encourage the employers which are now carrying the burdens of the war and are preparing for the new tasks of the peace years ahead.

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

I got a tremendous kick out of the president's report to Congress on the Yalta conference. Just imagine, he traveled 14,000 miles—then he apologized for sitting down to tell about it.

A man who has traveled that far deserves to sit down. Why on plane trips I not only sit down to tell about it afterwards, I even sit down before going aboard. The plane always carries me on anyway. I have enjoyed being at the Yalta conference though. It must have been funny with Churchill phoning down to see what happened to the cigars and FDR trying to roll his own while Stalin just sat there and smiled and puffed on his pipe.

Centre Street WSCS Plans Dinner for Basketball Players

The Women's Society of Christian Service of Centre Street Methodist church met yesterday with Mrs. George W. Barnard presiding. Plans were formulated for serving a dinner in honor of the church basketball team, sometime later this month, and for serving breakfast on Palm Sunday. Mrs. E. P. Phillips announced that her Circle No. 2 would hold a bake sale on March 24 from 10 to 1 o'clock in the old Lear and Oliver store room.

Mrs. R. S. Paulman was in charge of the devotionals, in which she stressed the need for spiritual awakening. The program, under the direction of Mrs. James Wier Kirk, included a talk on the Red Cross by Thomas Lohr Richards.

The Betty Washburne Choral Club presented the musical program. A trio, composed of Mrs. John Palmer, Mrs. R. T. Burbridge and Miss Earlene Hardman sang, "Lift Thine Eyes," Mendelssohn; and the same women with Mrs. Washburne sang "Teach Me To Pray," Beatrie Fenner; and as a last number a hymn, "His Eye Is on the Sparrow," with Mrs. William Ludman at the piano.

Mrs. William Cramer, new church hostess, was introduced to members of the society. A donation of $25 was made to the Red Cross drive.

Mrs. Walter Marion Michael, church Red Cross sewing group chairman announced that with Mrs. Roy Wadsworth as assistant chairman, they would conduct sewing meetings each Wednesday from 10 to 1 o'clock. She also made an appeal for sewing machines, and asked anyone having an available machine to contact her. Letters of appreciation for the booklets the society sent, were read from servicemen.

Luncheon was served 118 members by Circle No. 3, under the leadership of Mrs. Dan A. Fletcher and Mrs. Alex Buchanan.

After his discharge from the hospital, Reger recalled, he saw the king and queen of England when they visited the base where he was stationed.

Opposition from German fighter planes during raids was "practically nil," Reger stated, pointing out, "They didn't bother us very much. We were pretty lucky."

He added, however, that "we had some pretty bad times" on some raids and referred to one of his early missions when his plane was "shot up pretty bad" by flak. Only "one engine was working and another one was partly okay" when

ODT Ban on Travel Causes Postponement of WOW Convention

Indefinite postponement of the head camp convention of the jurisdiction of Maryland, West Virginia, Delaware and the District of Columbia, Woodmen of the World, scheduled here April 27 and 28, was announced yesterday by George C. Parker, chairman of the host organization, Mountain Camp No. 6.

Postponement was announced following a request from the Office of Defense Transportation that all unnecessary travel for conventions and other meetings be cancelled during the period of the ban applicable to transportation.

Parker said that he was advised by national headquarters of the Woodmen of the World in Omaha, Neb., that within sixty days after the ODT ban is lifted application should be made by Mountain Chapter for new dates for the staging of the convention here.

One hundred delegates and their wives, were expected to come here for the two day encampment.

After his discharge from the hospital, Reger recalled, he saw the king and queen of England when they visited the base where he was stationed.

Number of Close Shaves

The thirty-nine missions brought a number of "close shaves," according to Reger, "but all of the boys had them." He recalled one occasion when flak tore off the sole of his shoe but didn't injure him.

Another time, flak ripped open the back of his armored flak suit, bounced off and went on through the plane. As it turned out when the ship arrived back at base, that was Reger's last mission. "They told me they thought I had enough and I started packing," he said.

Reger wears the Distinguished Flying Cross and the citation discloses that he was presented to him for extraordinary achievement while participating in combat missions over Czechoslovakia. He also wears the Air Medal with five Oak Leaf Clusters, a Presidential unit citation, the Purple Heart and the European Theater of Operations ribbon with three stars representing campaigns in Normandy, Northern France and Germany.

Germany's Head Spy Says Hitler Plans New Trick

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

LONDON, March 8. (AP) — Capt. Franz von Rintelen, who has spent more than ten years in Allied prisons and concentration camps for his German connections in two wars, says Adolf Hitler probably is planning some new masterpiece of wickedness.

Von Rintelen has just been released from a detention camp on the Isle of Man.

Trim, middle-aged and wearing the button of Britain's St. John's ambulance service on his tweed coat, he is as free to walk about London as anyone.

He Suspects Hitler

Thoroughly German but violently anti-Nazi, he prays for the day of Hitler's downfall but warns that having accidents the Nazi collapse won't be soon. He suspects the Führer has another dirty trick up his sleeve.

Military affairs—especially naval aspects of them—were von Rintelen's specialty.

Von Rintelen, former captain of the Imperial German navy and a brilliant figure in United States Society in 1915, was accused of pouring vast sums from Germany into bribery, placing of German agents in vital munitions centers and on ships for sabotage, and of an attempt to involve Mexico in a war with the United States. He fled the country, but was taken off ship near England and returned to New York to stand trial.

Convicted of sabotage in federal court, he was sentenced to two prison terms and sent to Atlanta despite German demands that he be exchanged. Released by President Wilson in 1920, he returned to Germany, but went to France in 1926 and later moved to England where he announced in 1935 that he had returned his German passport and was done with Germany "for good."

Well Treated By British

In England during the early days of this war, the subject of one of his lectures was "secret service in peace and war."

He isn't surprised at being locked up occasionally and said the British treated him correctly.

Now that he is out he says his old life is far behind him. He says he has lost all contacts with Germany and isn't interested in establishing any unless to betray the Nazis.

lishing any unless to betray the Nazis.

"That July 20th attempt on Hitler's life—how it was mismanaged," von Rintelen says feelingly.

"I should have been in charge of that affair. It was bungling from beginning to end. Nazis have their own operatives in every phase and corner of German life. They knew in advance, of course. They had Hitler leave the room for a moment—and boom. It was so childish.

"No one can foretell how the end will come," the captain in exile said. "But we can be sure the Nazis will not have the slightest consideration for the German people or any other people."

The Rhine and the Oder river in the east are not the last German defense zones, he says.

It's been a long time since von Rintelen sat in a German conference on strategy, but he knows the old mentality. Speculations about the war's end, he thinks, should be in terms of 1946 unless fate produces some surprise.

Sees No Revolution

The captain is convinced there is no competent opposition to the Nazis in Germany. Consequently, he doesn't expect there will be an effective revolution.

Thus, Hitler probably would have time to arrange the details of a masterpiece of wickedness.

Von Rintelen, who now is gardening, described himself as thoroughly German—as distinguished from National Socialism.

The captain says his conscience won't permit him to do anything that might hurt German citizens. He won't make bombs, even if that would push the Nazis closer to collapse . . . but gardening is something else.

"I plan to grow everything from cabbage to orchids," he said. "Vegetables for the British children and orchids for the British lady. If it makes them happy I shall be content."

Eckhart Residents Fear New Cave-ins

Residents of Eckhart are becoming alarmed over reports of new cracks appearing in the earth in various sections of the community. They fear a cave-in may result in serious developments.

The community is located in the heart of a coal mining region and in recent months the underground blasting is said to have caused vibrations in numerous residences.

Maurice Myers, a retired coal miner of the Eckhart section, said that earth movements caused knives and forks on a dining table in his home to shake. The prevailing condition has been such a heavy nervous strain, he said, that he has had to consult a physician.

Another resident of Eckhart, Joseph Montana, who says he owns the mineral rights on his property, reported that cracks in the earth are appearing in the neighborhood of his residence. He conferred yesterday with mining officials regarding the procedure to prevent mine operations from reaching his grounds and plans to seek permission to have an engineer make a survey of underground mining in the vicinity.

Already the cave-ins are creating a hazardous condition. One huge cavity in the rear of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Al Delaney, is deep enough that roofing timber in the mine beneath can be seen. Mrs. Delaney stated yesterday that it is not uncommon for children in the neighborhood to play in this section and expressed fear for their safety. The cavity is said to have been made to provide air for men working in the mines.

FORMER OAKLAND SCHOOL TEACHER WOUNDED BY MINE

The 115th General Hospital, England—Corporal Clyde R. Dahlgren, 33, of Oakland, Maryland, former principal of the Oakland elementary school, wounded in the left eye and left leg when a land mine exploded, is now recovering at this United States Army general hospital in England. He has been awarded the Purple Heart.

"We had just pulled into one of the breakthrough sectors in Luxembourg," he said. "I was sent out with others as an advance party to probe German strength. We were on our way in a jeep when it hit a land mine and all five of us in the vehicle were injured."

"Fortunately, our reconnaissance regiment was not far away and there were medics there. Within half an hour we were given first aid, and I was taken to a clearing station. Eventually I was sent to hospitals in Luxembourg and France. I was flown to England."

His ward surgeon, First Lieutenant Lemuel W. Kornegay, Jr., of Rocky Mount, North Carolina, said "Cpl. Dahlgren is making normal progress in his recovery."

Cpl. Dahlgren entered the army in September, 1942. His father, Albert Dahlgren, resides at 40 Kent street, Akron, Ohio.

Play Is Given By Puppet Club

"Mr. Gabriel's Ball Gown" was presented by the Puppet club of Port Hill high school, sponsored by Miss Esther Holzhau, at the assembly yesterday afternoon for grades seven, eight and nine.

The play was rewritten by Doris Growden and Barbara Carder from a story of an old southern dress and its secret pocket.

The speakers were Barbara Carder, Doris Growden, Richard Cunningham, Pat Murphy, and James Shaeffer. Puppeteers were Colleen Kreg, Dorothy Briggs, Tommy Bowman, and Ross Keller. The stage was arranged by Joyce Layman. Betty Moore was in charge of costumes.

The opening exercises were led by Sherman Ambrose and Ross Keller read the scripture.

Considerable Coal Saved by "Brownout"

Potomac Edison Company officials said yesterday that approximately 350 to 400 tons of coal were saved on the P-E system in February as a result of the "brownout" program of the War Production Board which became effective February 1.

It is impossible to estimate the amount of coal saved at any one plant, a company spokesman said, and added that the saving is negligible as compared with total tonnage. He said the company will continue to co-operate with the program.

GOP Club Receives 29 More Members

The Young Men's Republican Club of Cumberland received twenty-nine applications for membership at a meeting held in the club rooms here Wednesday night. Since a campaign for new members was launched Feb. 1, a total of eighty-four have been taken into the club. The drive will continue until April 1.

The club voted a donation of $10 to the Allegany County League for Crippled Children and a similar amount to the Red Cross War Fund drive. The next meeting will be held March 21.

Senior semi-final winners are Norma Lee Cole, Lucille Creggan, Edward Beall, Betty Weaver, and Donald Mason. The junior is Harwell Saville.

Judges were Mrs. Arthur Schiefman, Mrs. Eugene Hilton, Mrs. Joseph Russell, Misses Regina McCulley and Gertrude Ranck.

Home Rule Bills

the General Assembly to pass local laws of the nature to be delegated to county commissioners under the other bill.

The Senate voted 14-13 to advance the measure to the final passage stage, where a two-third favorable vote is necessary.

Against Home Rule
During the debate on the county commissioners bill, opponents of the act, led by Republican Floor Leader Davis, contended that the county commissioners did not want home rule legislation and that the General Assembly would be "shirking responsibility" in dropping legislative tasks into the laps of the several counties.

Senator Kimble (R-Allegany), who opposed the commissioners' bill but supported the companion bill, said home rule legislation without the proposed constitutional amendment was "a farce and a mockery."

After adoption of the Davis amendment, Lindsay turned over the chair to Senator Sothoron (D-Prince George's) and began his defense of home rule legislation with a motion to substitute the constitutional amendment measure for an unfavorable report which the judicial proceedings committee had returned on it, and thus advance it to final passage stage.

Wants Referendum
He said he realized that the other home rule legislation was not "so emasculated as to be hardly recognizable" but he pleaded with the Senate to "allow the voters of Maryland to pass on what kind of local self-government they wished to have." This would be done, he said, by a referendum on the proposed constitutional amendment.

"The Maryland legislature is not the place to administer the affairs of the counties," the Senate president exclaimed. "It is a state-wide body for state-wide laws."

The "home rule" contention involved a legislative day that otherwise was as routine as a well-oiled machine.

Sixty-six bills were passed, forty-five of them in the House, while thirty were introduced, all but five of them in the House.

Only a handful were of more than local interest.

The House passed and sent on for signature by the governor bills to provide for state licensing and supervision of well drillers, and to place employment agencies under supervision of the commissioner of labor and statistics.

The Senate gave the final General Assembly nod to measures which would create a committee to study the need for a state office building in Baltimore and relieve officers, directors of domestic insurers of liability for payment of taxes imposed by statutes which might be declared unconstitutional.

Kimble Takes Floor

Senator Kimble, who switched sides immediately after opposing the commissioners' "home rule" bill, also demanded that the question of local government be decided by the proposed amendment to the constitution of Maryland.

"After this proposed amendment has been voted on by the people," he told his colleagues, "we shall then have their opinion, and shall know what to do."

Previously Senator Funk (D-Frederick), the majority floor leader, joined Cronin in lamenting the Davis amendment to the commissioner's bill.

"I predict that unless the people of Maryland wake up to this centralization of government, there will be a gradual lessening of local authority," he said.

The county commissioners, he added, should not be allowed to shirk the responsibility of local self-government, although he admitted that a majority of them had expressed hostility to home rule legislation.

His argument that it was a way to cut back increasing centralization of government was flatly contradicted by Senator Davis, who said that the legislature was a proper place to pass on local matters and that the "philosophy behind home rule legislation is downright bad."

Senator Wilmer (R-Charles) entered the heated controversy by stating that the county commissioners were less experienced in legislative technique than their representatives in the General Assembly.

It was evident that the real test of strength on the measures would come with the vote on the constitutional amendment measure. Without this, supporters of "home rule" legislation would "mean little."

During the tense roll call following the debate, the chance of forceful home rule laws being enacted at this session slipped away.

Supporters of the bill almost have little hope of mustering the required two-thirds majority when the bill comes up for final passage.

Two senators were absent during the voting. Senator Byrnes (D-Balto Fifth) was ill. He is understood to be favoring the constitutional amendment bill. The other, Senator Johnson (D-Worcester) probably would have voted against it, Senators said.

The counties exempt from the diluted version of the county commissioners bill—diluted because it would not repeal existing local laws but leave the extent of "home rule" largely to the discretion of the commissioners—were:

Allegany, Calvert, Caroline, Garrett, Charles, Howard, Dorchester, Kent, Prince George's, St. Mary's, Somerset, Wicomico, and Worcester.

Parsons Man is Sailed in Keyser on Assault Charge

By LUKE McDOWELL

KEYSER, W. Va., March 8—R. R. Murphy, Parsons, W. Va., fireman, was held in the Keyser jail on charges of assaulting Samuel Michalek, 23, of Keyser, after a fight Tuesday in Hammel's restaurant, Armstrong street, according to Vernon E. Rankin, prosecuting attorney.

The arrest, on a state warrant, was made at 1 a. m. by Officer Edgel of the Keyser city police.

Michalek was treated for bruises and cuts about the mouth and head and a blow on the right temple by W. F. McFarland, after treatment he was taken to the Keyser hospital where he fainted from loss of blood. Officers took him to Potomac Valley hospital. He was released from the hospital this afternoon.

Rankin said that the two men had exchanged a few words before Murphy assaulted Michalek.

Rankin said he is to be indicted in the Keyser March 4.

I.O.O.F. Initiates 23

Queens Point Lodge 78, I.O.O.F., initiated a class of twenty-three at a meeting Monday night, the largest single group admitted to membership in the lodge in the seventy years of its existence.

In conferring the degree the local lodge staff was assisted by members of the staff of Philo Lodge, Westernport.

Grand Herald Brown Kookon of the grand lodge of Maryland, brought greetings of Grand Master Jeff and Grand Secretary Jefferson of that jurisdiction. The Rev. B. Johnson of Park, W. Va., and master of the jurisdiction of West Virginia, was the principal speaker.

The grand master used "Onward Together" as the theme for his address. After congratulating the lodge on the fine class inducted into the order, he spoke of the influence of the tenets of Odd Fellowship in shaping the thinking of men as they approach the time when peace will again reign in our world.

He stated that if the principles of friendship, truth and love do not have a prominent place in the minds of those who write the peace treaty, they who write it will have written in vain.

Lodges represented were Queens Point, Thomas lodge, Philo lodge, Westernport; Chosen Friends lodge, Cumberland; Kerns lodge, Mineral lodge, Elk Garden; Asheville, N. C.; Cassoway lodge.

At the close of the session the ladies of Mount Olive Rebekah lodge served refreshments.

Reviewing the expansion program, Dr. Camille Dreyfus, president, said that production will come in the near future in part of the new chemical plant at Bishop, Tex. Construction has been progressing satisfactorily. Several new subsidiaries have been formed, including Celanese Corporation, which will handle sales of chemical products produced by the company.

Celanese Sales Set New Record

NEW YORK, March 8—(Special)—The consolidated net income of the Celanese Corporation of America in 1944 aggregated $7,235,190 after all charges and taxes equivalent to $2.86 a share on 1,579,448 common shares outstanding compared with $6.275,593 or $2.83 on 1,376,551 common shares in 1943, according to the annual report released yesterday.

Despite the fact that uncertain deliveries of raw materials and work stoppages interrupted production schedules, net sales of Celanese Corporation of America soared

Make the Most of Breakfast

By CHARLOTTE ADAMS
Associated Press Food Editor

You know, of course, whether you upon it or not, that breakfast is an important meal and that you should eat a good one. At least a quarter of the food you eat during the day should be consumed at breakfast.

Eating a good breakfast is largely a matter of habit. If you are one who says, "But I'm never hungry in the morning," you may be pretty sure that you could be if you'd give yourself a chance. You need food in the morning, when your body has been so long without it, to get going, whether it be for school, or going to school, you need food, substantial food in your stomach to work on while you attend to other matters.

One important element in connection with getting a good breakfast in time. You can't eat a real meal in five minutes. But it's worth while to get up fifteen minutes or even a half hour earlier in order to eat a proper meal in comfort.

Next, breakfast should be an interesting meal. It should not be the same every day. Making breakfast varied is the housekeeper's business. It isn't a very hard one. The ration-point bugaboo doesn't seem to haunt you here. There is variety in each of the elements which goes to make a proper breakfast.

Of course there are people who would happily drink orange juice every morning for breakfast. Others prefer variety. Grapefruit, tomato, and other juices are good. Stewed fruit is, too. And sometimes serve

provide breakfast variety

apple, pears, or other fruits "as is," heated ready-to-eat kind. Sometimes serve cut up dried or fresh fruit on the cereal.

Eggs can be served at breakfast in several ways. I do think that some "plain" form of cooking them is best, but don't think they have to be just soft cooked every time. They may be fried, poached, coddled, or scrambled. The main point is to remember, however you do them, is that eggs should be cooked slowly and gently always. Quick cooking on a hot stove toughens them and makes them less digestible.

What to eat with the egg course? Toast—invariably? Oh, no please. Toast sometimes, to be sure, but hot bread occasionally is what makes breakfast interesting. It doesn't take too long to whip up a batch of muffins occasionally. Make twice too many and serve them split and toasted next day. Or make corn bread sometimes. And here's a really quick hot bread that your family is sure to love.

Oat French Toast Sticks

1 thick slice stale bread
1 egg
1 cup milk
1/2 cup quick oats
1/2 cup flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1/2 teaspoon baking powder

Slice bread one-inch thick, trim off crusts and cut in one-inch strips. Beat egg, measure flour and blend with salt, pepper and baking powder. Stir in eggs and milk, mixing until smooth. Dip bread in batter, then in oats. Saute slowly in butter or margarine until crisp and delicately browned. Serve very hot with jelly or syrup.

U. S. Engineers And Railroaders Work in France

By A. I. GOLDBERG
(Substituting for Kenneth L. Dixon)
AVIGNON, FRANCE (AP)—Avignon is only a bystop these days on the network of railways now operated throughout France by the United States Army's military railway service and French railway workers. Military security cloaks how much is being carried on how many trains, but from a third to a half of France is being supplied through Marseilles on a network of lines to the north, west and east.

All along the lines you see American railroaders rebuilding bridges, restoring yards, laying track and ballast and moving food, ammunition and other supplies to the fighting fronts and civil centers.

Typical Railway Unit
Here at Avignon a company of the Seven Hundred and Twenty-seventh railway operating battalion commanded by Capt. James Beard of Vinton, Va., former Southern Railway construction executive, is typical of many units scattered along several thousand miles of tracks in southern France.

Most railroaders along the Lyon-Marseilles stretch have been overseas upwards of twenty-eight months with stops at Casablanca, Sicily and in Italy. Some outfits were brought over as units, but there have been a number of replacements as the work increased. Casualties have been light.

This outfit has railroaders from all over. A track maintenance gang in the yards included Sgt. Harold Lollar, route three, Aichison, Kas., who used to be a section foreman for the Missouri Pacific; Cpl. August Carmon of Davy, W. Va., and the Norfolk and Western; Cpl. Drullie Nelson, Amstown, Ky. (cable copy unlisted in postal guide) ex-foreman of the Southern; Pfc. Clifford Sonder, rural route, Mansfield, Ohio, and the Erie Railroad; Pvt. John Hrusko of Springboro, Pa. and the Bessemer and Lake Erie.

Just Like Home
Hrusko has been overseas twenty-seven months and says "I'm doing the same kind of work I did back home, but at least that was home and I'd sure like to be back there."

Others in gangs on duty, around fires, or just resting were Pfc. Stanley Andrucki, Milwaukee, Wis.; Pfc. Kenneth Dittmar, Niles, Mich.; Pvt. Paul Allard, Skiatook, Okla.; Pfc. Vincent Boland, Rapid City, N. D.; Pvt. Ferlin Kinman, Winslow, Ind.; Cpl. Arthur Langhorst, Barnum, Minn.; Cpl. Harold Petzer, Delphos, Ohio.

Widespread Destruction
The Germans left bridges blown and trackage torn up all along the path of their retreat, but the railway service accomplished repairs with amazing speed. One of their principal jobs was to throw a 2,000-foot bridge across a raging, flooded river using captured German material.

The Engineers not only have to rebuild spans, but clear tunnels, including one more than six miles long and another a mile and a half long.

Combination steam and Diesel hauling is used on the French rail network. The French employees swung right into their jobs and did marvelous work, most army officers agreed, though they lacked warm clothing and good food in the bitter winter just past.

Lt. Col. Fred Okie, Birmingham, Ala., former division superintendent of the Southern Railway now commanding the Seven Hundred and Fourth railway grand division, said the French workers' operating record and morale had been good.

Military railways have operated within a mile of the battle front, but average generally about division depth or six miles or so back.

Unwed Mother's Parents May Act Without Wisdom

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

The picture of a young girl walking up and down in front of a house to try and catch a glimpse of her baby makes us stop and consider.

How about our "quality of mercy," on which we smugly pride ourselves, saying that we have institutions in this country to look after all such cases—but have we?

This is the old, old story of a girl being so much in love that she didn't stop to ask questions of the man she believed in. When she told him she was going to have a baby and that they should get married, he coolly informed her that was out of the question—he already had a wife—and if she disclosed their relationship he would kill her and the baby. Nice sort of man that!

Parents Acted Unwisely
The parents of this 19-year-old unwed mother acted most unwisely in urging their daughter to sign papers for the adoption of her child some months before its birth. As she told the court in her attempt to recover her baby "I was so frightened I didn't know what I was doing."

The situation was enough to terrify any girl. In the most brutal way the child's father had not only gone back on her, refused to assume any responsibility, but actually threatened to kill her and the child if she told. How could she realize the rush of love that would come with this baby girl with its first cry—but you see she had signed the adoption papers giving it away.

In rendering his decision that the adoptive parents should keep the child, Visiting Judge Richard M. Duncan in Washington said that while his sympathy was with the 19-year-old unwed mother, who had shown a great deal of character and was willing to assume the responsibility of bringing up her baby, he felt that the best interests of the child would be served if it were allowed to remain with its foster parents.

The Legal Argument
The legal argument was that the child would fare better with the adoptive parents than if people knew it was born out of wedlock.

The judge condemned bitterly the girl's parents for permitting her to sign an agreement for adoption.

Aren't we becoming more enlightened concerning this question of illegitimacy? When Judge Lehman was governor of New York, he made the birth records mercifully inaccessible to hide this fact. In Scandinavian countries before they were over-run by Nazis, the question of illegitimacy was outmoded, the question being why should the sins of the parents be visited upon an innocent child?

Stocks Suffer Sharpest Break In Month as Yanks Cross Rhine

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—Stocks, bonds and commodities today suffered their sharpest break in months as heavy liquidation apparently was touched off by a revival of reconversion fears coincident with the First Army's crossing of the Rhine and talk of further government pressure against speculation.

While peace-rated shares retreated with the armament groups, they suffered considerably less. The stock list idled at moderately lower levels until the final hour when a sharp wave of selling put the high speed ticker tape as much as four minutes behind actual floor transactions and it was thirty-five minutes before the machinery returned to normal operations.

Declines of one to more than four points were reduced in most cases at the close as the pace slowed in the last quarter hour.

Transfers of 1,860,000 shares compared with 1,400,000 Wednesday. Of the total, 1,000,000 shares appeared in the concluding hour.

Conspicuous losers of one to three points included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, Santa Fe, Southern Railway, N. Y. Central, U. S. Rubber, Douglas Aircraft, Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Amoco, Standard Oil (N.J.), Johns-Manville and du Pont. Modest plus marks were retained by Cudahy, International Telephone and Philip Morris.

Curb decliners were E. W. Blix, American Republics and Electric Bond & Share. Improved were Hecla Mining and National City Lines. Turnover here was 550,000 shares versus 430,000 yesterday.

Railroad bonds took a sharp tumble in the market as stocks and other financial markets were upset.

The greatest battle was for the center position with Allegany's Bill Stanley and Fort Hill's Jim Steele, of the Central High Tigers, Stanley had two first-team votes and three second-team votes for seven points on a basis of two for first and one for second. Steele, with two first-team ballots and two second-team votes, had six points.

Last year's second team was composed of Cueva, Bruce and Dick McCoy, Fort Hill, forwards; Lou Skidmore, Beall, center; and Glenn Hanna and Francis Cosgrove, Beall, guards.

Phillies Are Seen As Possible Flag Threat This Year

Club Celebrates Thirtieth Anniversary of Only Pennant in 1945

By J. HERBERT ALTSCHULL

PHILADELPHIA, March 8 (AP)—In wartime 1945, full of its baseball uncertainties, the Philadelphia Phillies celebrate the thirtieth anniversary of their one and only National League championship.

An the 1945 edition of the long-time league doormat contains the best Phil prospects in many years.

"You know me. I don't like to prophesy," says General Manager Herb Pennock. But he added that if Selective Service "doesn't take a big dent out of the roster, we'll be considerably better than last year" when the Phils ended at the bottom of the league pile.

The Phils are an odd assortment of youth and age, speed and tried qualities. If Veterans Jimmy Fox, Gus Mancuso, Bill Lee and Company can be whipped into good shape, the Phils may develop into a real pennant threat.

Newcomers Look Good
And then there are the flashy Hammer brothers—Garvin and Granville—from Richmond, Va., plus Elisha (Bibby) Mott and Fred Daniels, the Utica, N. Y., Keystone combination, all expected to furnish plenty of speed in the infield.

Pennock said "I am very optimistic about Jimmy Fox. He is in excellent shape." The Phils are planning to use Fox at first, Pennock said, with Mott, Daniels, the Hammer brothers and Veterans Charley Letchas and Ford Mullen battling for the other infield spots.

The Phils look fair behind the plate. Al Spindler, who pounded the ball at a 353 clip with Seattle in the Pacific Coast League last year, is expected to land the No. 1 spot, but reliable Gus Mancuso, veteran of fifteen years in the National League, will also be on hand.

Johnny Pesock, last year's No. 1 receive, is expected to enter the armed forces shortly.

Adams Wasell Available
In the outfield, tested Buster Adams and Jimmy Wasell will be available but Strauss Man, Ron Northey has been drafted. "The loss of Northey is quite a blow," Pennock said, "and we don't expect Les Scarsella to be able to report."

The Phils obtained Scarsella from Oakland last year after the former Cincinnati Redleg hit .329. He has been classified 1-A.

The Phils are entrenched with hurlers. They are Veterans Bill Lee and Vernon Kennedy as well as Kenny Raffensberger, Charley Schanz and Dick (Kewpie) Barrett, most effective 1944 hurlers, and several rookies headed by Charley Sproul, who was drafted from Milwaukee with a sixteen won and seven lost record last season.

Brickles added that he felt it was a "little unusual" that a freshman outfit such as his team should get a bid. Of the twelve-member squad, only one man is a sophomore.

The Mountaineers were the surprise winners of the invitational event in 1942 when a team coached by Dyke Raese went into the meet seeded last and proceeded to take Long Island, seeded No. 1 by a 58-44 score in the first game, Toledo 41-39 in the semi-finals, and Kentucky 47-53 in a thriller-packed championship match.

LaSalle To Play St. Mary's Quint In Sunday Clash

Clarksburg Cagers Won 19 of 22 Games during Regular Season

The LaSalle High Explorers, who closed their regular season Wednesday night with a record of twenty-five victories and one defeat, will open the postseason stage of their campaign by meeting the St. Mary's High Strippers, of Clarksburg, W. Va., on the SS. Peter and Paul floor Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Arrangements for the contest were completed yesterday. St. Mary's boasts the best record among Catholic high schools in West Virginia and was runnerup to Wheeling Central Catholic high in the state tournament last week.

Reserve seats for the game will go on sale today at LaSalle's usual agents.

The clash will be the first of four planned to get Coach Art Slocum's Explorer quint primed for the Eastern Catholic League tournament at Newport, R. I., beginning Thursday, March 22, and at the same time raise funds to finance the trip.

The tentative program calls for LaSalle to meet the Tri-Towns Merchants next Tuesday night, the Cumberland American Legion next Friday night and the Western Maryland Interscholastic League All-Stars on Sunday afternoon, March 18.

St. Mary's lost 46-35 to Wheeling Central in the West Virginia tournament last night after trailing by ten points midway in the final quarter. The Strippers topped all West Virginia Catholic quintets during the regular season with a record of nineteen wins in twenty-two starts and were unbeaten in "Little Ten" conference competition.

New Family Serial Will Be Offered On Radio Chain

By C. E. BUTTERFIELD

NEW YORK, March 8 (AP)—That Brewster Fox having departed the CBS Friday night kilocycles, his place at 9:30 p. m. is being taken by another family serial, this one called "Those Websters." It will originate from Chicago and tell the story of another of those "typical" American small town families on the radio. There are mother and dad, boy and girl, uncle and aunt and other appropriate characters. Boxing broadcast for MBS at 10 in the usual spot, this time is to be details of Billy Arnold vs. Rock Graziano, with all the necessary details coming from Don Dunphy and Steve Ellis, who is taking Bill Corum's place at the ringside.

Lieut. Gen. B. B. Somervell, commander of the army service forces, will talk about that organization's third anniversary for CBS at 7:15, from Washington.

Vanity Fair, Part I, will be the Great Novel for NBC at 11:30. It will be split up into four sections.
